

ABOUT ME:

Through Wear2, I've always believed that jewelry should be the means to spark change.

The journey that led me to found Wear 2 started by having my feet in two worlds – embracing my Kenyan heritage and channeling my passion for this change. In my childhood, I spent many summers in Kenya where my grandparents lived. I've witnessed not only the economic challenges faced by many local communities, but also the incredible beauty, creativity and entrepreneurial spirit of the local people.

Inspired by their resilience, initiative, as well as my personal mission to make a positive impact, I am launching Wear2, in which many of the products are made of sustainably sourced materials. It's not just jewelry, the pieces reflect the creativity, culture, and strength of the people who make them.

My frequent visits to Kenya have deepened my connection with the cause and fueled my desire to help others. Previously, I've been involved in projects like supporting kids in an orphanage outside of Nairobi, and helping endangered wildlife. Now, with this new initiative, I'm combining my passion towards creating sustainable change through fashion, and helping those in need. I will also contribute a portion of my sales back to the orphanage in Kenya I helped years ago in order to help change a girl's world by furthering their education.

Each piece of jewelry, handmade by local disabled, yet gifted and abled, Kenyan artists is a symbol of hope and empowerment. Crafted with love and care, they represent not just the artistic legacy of Kenya but also our commitment to helping the causes that mean a lot to me.

By helping my business grow, you're not just buying jewelry, you're joining a movement for positive change and supporting the livelihood of the unique artisans of Kenya. The portion of sales donated to the education of some orphans will help empower these children to make their own mark on the world and enhance the lives of others by paying it forward.

Thank you for being a vital part of this journey.

MISSION STATEMENT:

Wear 2 is committed to empowering and supporting marginalized communities through sustainable recycled fashion. We create recycled handcrafted jewelry in partnership with local Kenyan artisans. We believe that through economic opportunities, we can contribute to fostering independence and the well-being of women and girls.

Our mission is to promote education, awareness and sustainable livelihoods, creating a positive impact and fostering a future free from harmful environments, and providing women and girls the stepping stones for a better tomorrow.

By showcasing the beauty of Kenyan craftsmanship, we aim to inspire change and build a world where every individual can thrive with dignity and respect.
